

Building a real “sense of place”: Where are the opportunities?

- Concord Avenue and Alewife Brook Parkway as true gateways
- Internal streets that welcome pedestrians
- Reinforcing connections to great outdoor spaces

Study for new neighborhood square

Building a real “sense of place”: Where are the challenges?

- Concord Avenue:
Discontinuous street edges with awkward mix of uses
- Alewife Brook Parkway:
Suburban-style development and vast parking lots

Building a real “sense of place”: Where are the challenges?

- Lack of distinction in the Quadrangle between public and private spaces
- Blurred line between pedestrian and auto realms
- No hierarchy of public uses or architecture

Building a real “sense of place”: Where are the challenges?

- Lack of physical or visual corridors to outdoor spaces

Forming a district of “good neighbors”: What are the opportunities?

- Potentially conflicting land uses in the study area

Good transitions make good neighbors

